

O mother I wish you were here! (Poem)

Mamta Sharma

Assistant Professor

Ansal Technical Campus

Lucknow

*O mother I wish you were here!
Holding my hand and sitting very near;
There was a time when you were there,
For your guidance, love and care;
But now I feel myself in a Deep Ocean alone,
Yelling your name but I know you are gone;
O mother I wish you were here!
Holding my hand and sitting very near.
You seemed to be out of sight,
But your memoirs inside are very bright;
No relation can make me contented,
As the bond between us can never be sedated;
O mother I wish you were here!
Holding my hand and sitting very near.
How I wish to share my feelings of bereavements,
Feelings of failure, my passion, and little achievements;
How hard it is to forget your affection,
Since I am unable to find that attention;
O mother I wish you were here!*

*Holding my hand and sitting very near.
Life is full of complexities and thorny deceits,
How to get solace but I won't retreat;
As you always wished me to touch the sky,
So I'll keep marching till I reach very high;
But even the victory seems to lie
And my heart still sinks and does cry;
O mother I wish you were here!
Holding my hand and sitting very near.*

NO ONE IS ALIEN HERE

*No one is alien here,
We all are akin to each other;
Scarlet blood flows in all of us,
But the colour of skin may differ,
Voice, a wonderful gift by Lord,
But the language may differ,
Brain, a brilliant gift by Him,
But thoughts may differ,
Skills, a fantastic gift by Him,
But caliber may differ,
Who's created the difference in human hither?
It's created by human not by Him.
Then why there is hatred, jealousy and differences,
Why there is bloodshed and riots,
Awake and be acquainted with the beauty of the world,
Politeness, sympathy, love and empathy,
The greatest treasure of mirth,
Enrich yourself with them as they are worth,*

*Magnificent and glorious this world will become,
No distinction, no partition, no boundaries will become,
Cause of inhumanity to humans then.*