

CAESURA (Poem)

Dr. S. Anita Evelyn

Tiny as dew seated on a leaf
Trickle they fall, when in breeze
Comfortably cushioned – a moment before
Now nowhere, where did they go?

'tis true to life for you and me
Cushioned all through, we smile with glee
Pain and sorrow amidst us be
Ignore all and see a happy me!

Is it possible? – Populace ask
Oui! I reply nonchalantly...
Looks of amazement fills the air
Frowning brows and blinking eyes shows despair...
